The Learna approach

Learna approaches learning in a way that is becoming increasingly rare in the current educational system - we actively acknowledge that each and every child is unique, and as such, each child learns uniquely. Realising that inspiration and interaction can spark a child's interest in learning has been a key in forming the Learna approach to modern education.

Going beyond traditional methods, Learna aims to get to know each student and their current skills and knowledge upon enrollment - They are allowed to take in information at their own pace, making sure no child is left behind by a teacher rushing the rest of the class ahead of them. We have put an emphasis on making sure our system allows for the student to feel a true mastery of each subject before being moving on to the next; affirming their belief in their own abilities, and rewarding it with skills that can be applied as they move forward.

Learna stays ten steps ahead of traditional schooling not only in their understanding and encourage approach, but also in their teaching methods. Computers are at the centre of the students daily education, so whilst they learn long division or even just basic reading, they are constantly becoming more computer-literate with each class - an invaluable asset as technology merges with daily life in countless ways. Again, Learna has taken this approach another pace forward, we've created our own learning software. Each Learna Centre utilises the software as a key tool at the very heart of the system, it's been designed to compliment the schools efforts and curriculum perfectly.

Essentially, Learna allows education to be passed on as it always should have been; with understanding, tailoring and open lines of communication between teachers and students. Those three simple touches can make a world of difference to a child's formative years, and how they approach their education.
